

OTR-2023OCT20-Transcript

Fri, Oct 20, 2023 11:25AM 10:29

SUMMARY KEYWORDS

toronto, record, november, released, ttc, week, update, kayla, include, seats, raptors, canada, lawsuit, latest, bedbug, film, charlotte, continues, goodwin, session

---

00:12

Good morning. Thanks for tuning in with us. I'm Holly Newell and I'm shot at Brookhaven Ville. Here are some of the stories we're falling for you this morning from the On The Record newsroom. Toronto has to reveal its plan to help those experiencing homelessness stay warm during the upcoming winter months, starting November 15. For warming self interest will be open when temperatures drop below minus five. On top of this, the city plans to open a 24 respite site with 40 spaces. shelter beds will also be moved closer together to create around 100 and add new spaces and pre existing shelters such as director of homeless initiatives Cortana in an announcement on Tuesday, according to Tanner, the city is currently sheltering 10,700 people and turning away around 275 daily. He said that due to high demand and strained resources, the city is doing what it can to expand services from November to April, but it may not be enough.

00:16

01:14

Images of a small insect on a TTC subway seat resembling a bedbug has gone viral. It is prompting residents to advocate for the installation of plastic seats in the transit system. The TTC has previously trialed plastic seats on multiple occasions and even propose the use of metal seats during the Toronto rocket design phase. However, these initiatives have constantly been met with negative feedback and have not been implemented permanently. According to a spokesperson from the TTC. As reported by CTV News. Despite nightly cleaning efforts, occasional bedbug infestations do occur within the transit system. In April, there was a glimmer of hope for users when the TTC introduced plastic seats and a few buses. But unfortunately, there's been no update since then.

02:10

Canada's inflation rate has lowered 3.8% In the month of September. The figure reported by Statistics Canada shows a decrease from August 4% rates. The latest consumer price index said the lower cost of living is broad based and stems from cheaper prices and goods and services like travel and some groceries. This update comes a week before the Bank of Canada's next interest rate announcement. As of now, the interest rate continues to sit at 5%

 02:40

The Toronto Pearson Airport has deployed a mobile security robot as part of their update security measures. This new innovation was unveiled on Tuesday featuring an inspection robot that conducts protocols along runways, taxiways, and security fences. It is a new proof of concept created by a collaborative effort between Honda a Luminex AI Jen wave technologies Cisco and Eagle aerospace. This robot possesses the capability to detect security risks ranging from minor issues like fencing breaches to more significant and immediate security threats.

 03:22

Now let's turn to On The Record reporter Kyla Vontae, who was able to talk with TMU's Men's Basketball recruit Shaq Kobe needs.

 03:30

Thanks guys. This week I had a chance to talk to Jacoby nice, who is one of the additions to the TMU's men's basketball team. He transferred here after playing four years in the NCAA spending two seasons with Wake Forest and two with Wisconsin. The guard has dealt with several injuries during his career, but he's a former bio seal all Canadian game MVP and won a big 10 regular season championship in 2022. The Toronto native transferred to TMU's to continue his rehab and education at home. Stay tuned with On The Record news to find out what nice had to say about his transfer to Tmu and this upcoming season. I'm Kayla Fante. For On The Record back to you guys in the studio.

 04:11

The women on weights workshop at Tmu was so popular amongst users that organizers say it will be extended beyond the original end date of November 1. The program is designed to empower students who identify as women by teaching the principles of weight training and how to use equipment properly in a safe environment with a female trainer. All sessions of this program are conducted during women's hours at the rack and cost $10 per session. The professional women's hockey league also kicks off their session this November. Meanwhile, the Raptors filed a new motion in their lawsuit. Here's Tory Goodwin with your latest in sports.

 04:59

I'm Tory Goodwin and this is your sports update. The inaugural season for the new professional women's hockey league is set to begin in January, which does include a Toronto team. The league announced on Monday that the training camps will open for all six teams on November 15. This will be the first time players will get the chance to skate with their new teammates. And for those invited who have not been drafted earn a roster spot. The teams can have a maximum of 27 players by November 29, and final rosters must be complete by December 11. On Monday, the Toronto Raptors filed to dismiss a lawsuit against them, which was brought on in August by the New York Knicks. The allegations claimed that the Raptors conspired to steal 1000s of videos and other scouting secrets. Toronto's head coach and a former next scouting employee were also named in the lawsuit. This new motion for dismissal caused the lawsuit baseless and a public relations stunt. And other news last week, the Scotiabank arena homes the Toronto Raptors and Maple Leafs unveiled plans for a $350 million renovation. These are to be completed in multiple phases, with the first one set to begin next summer following the end of the raptors and leafs seasons. This first phase includes a full renovation of the 100 level concourse and addition to constructing new spaces in the arena. Future plans include what they call a one of a kind museum quality art collection, showcasing sport, music and history. Now you're up to date. That's it for sports this week. I'm Tori Goodwin.

06:35

TAYLOR So fans entered her cinema era this week with the stars released of her heiress Tour film. Here's Kayla Fonzie. With more on that and other entertainment.

06:45

Welcome to On The Record entertainment. I'm Kayla Fante. Last Friday was a fairy tale for Taylor Swift Fans as her film the ARIS tour was released in theaters. The movie amassed almost 93 million during its opening weekend in the US and Canada, making it the highest grossing domestic concert film ever. This is something that Swifties will always remember all too well. On Sunday, Drakes and Adonis had his first rap song and video released. The song titled My man freestyle was released to celebrate his sixth birthday. The video features at dawn is playing basketball with his friends while dropping some bars. Also, it was announced on Sunday that Suzanne Somers had passed away. The beloved Three's Company star passed peacefully at her home just one day before her 77th birthday, following a battle with breast cancer. Next, Disney celebrated their 100th birthday on October 16, by releasing a new animated short film called Once upon a studio, the short featured 543 iconic characters for more than 85 films. One of these characters included Robin Williams genie from the 1992 film Aladdin, while the actor passed away in 2014. The filmmakers use old audio recordings to bring back the beloved character. In other news, Jada Pinkett Smith released her memoir worthy a few days ago. The book talks about her upbringing, relationship with a late rapper Tupac marriage to Will Smith and time in Hollywood. It also included several bombshells including that she and most men have actually been separated since 2016. Finally, blink 182. His new album One More Time, was released today. This marks the band's ninth studio album and their first new album since 2011. The band said the album was inspired by the tragedies and catastrophes the members have experienced over the years. And that's all we have for entertainment today. I'm Kayla Fontaine for On The Record back to you guys in the studio.

08:44

Fall has officially arrived in the GTA here Charlotte with next week's autumn forecast.

08:52

Good morning, I'm Charlotte Bootsy benzyl and welcome to On The Record weather. Let's take a look at what we can expect for today. For Toronto, we have a high of 15 today with Ottawa, Mississauga and Hamilton who all share this beautiful warm fall weather. The worm does not over yet and continues with 14 for Barry new market Peterborough and Brampton. St. Catherine gets to enjoy a high of 16 while for Guelph and Kitchener. It gets a little more chilly with the high of 13. As for Toronto's five day forecast, this weekend is starting a bit gray with a rainy Saturday and high of 13 and low six. The rain stops on Sunday with clouds setting in any cooler high of eight with a low of three. The beginning of the week remains Cloudy with a high of 10 and a low five for Monday. Tuesday has a high of 13 and low of 11. Rain comes back on Wednesday with a bit of worms with a high of 16 and low 13. I'm solid what's even Ville for On The Record weather back to you guys in the studio. That's all for On The Record this October 2023 I'm Charlotte Watsonville. And I Holly Newell join us for On The Record next week as we round out the latest stories from the OTDR newsroom. For the latest 24/7 Visit us On The Record news.ca Thanks for tuning in. Have a great day.

10:07